A Dominican Lent

GENERAL APPROACH TO LENT

“Father, what should I give up for Lent?” Oddly enough, this can be a somewhat challenging question. I might have recommendations for spiritual directees or people who regularly come to me for confession, but that’s because I can see patterns of sin or grace in their lives. More often than not, though, the answer depends on various principles. What does the person need to do to cut out repeated sinful actions and cultivate patterns of virtue in their lives?

On top of those basic principles, I’d like to propose an additional set. Yes, a set of principles to help guide another set of principles might sound odd, but Dominicans are all about principles guiding particulars. While this is typical (and possibly annoying), if you know anything about me, it seems spot on.

DOMINICAN APPROACH TO LENT

The four pillars of Dominican life can be helpful here. As I fleshed out in a fairly long set of bulletin articles during my first year here, the Dominican pillars are study, prayer, community, and preaching. As parishioners in a Dominican Parish, these can direct how we live and grow close to the Lord. So, what would a Lent look like when it is guided by these pillars?

For study, it would be helpful to study the things that will help you break free from sin and grow in virtue. For instance, if you struggle with sins of lust, then the video series Brain, Heart, World; the book The Porn Myth by Matt Fradd; or the book Chastity by Bishop Erik Varden could be helpful. Another example would be about the struggle to be attentive at Mass. If that’s the case in your life, then you might attend our Lenten Parish Study “Praying the Mass,” which will be on Mondays in Lent at 6:45 PM. Moreover, giving up sugars (sweets, carbs, and alcohol) can help the brain be more attentive and thus help study bear more fruit.

For prayer, it could be helpful to pick a vice that you’re struggling to break free from or a virtue that you’re hoping to cultivate and to make that the intention for your time in prayer. For example, if you’re struggling with pride, then you might offer a daily Rosary, weekly Stations of the Cross, or weekly holy hour to break that vice and grow in the opposite virtue, i.e. humility. St. Joseph’s in Greenwich Village (the other Dominican Parish in Manhattan) has a perpetual adoration chapel, and it could be wonderful to sign up for an hour each week and to beg the Lord to help you grow in virtue. Moreover, giving up something like social media and replacing it with spiritual reading or lectio divina can be so fruitful in Lenten.

For community, it is helpful to reflect on where there is a rupture in community in your life. Is it with your family, friends, spouse, or children? Sometimes, the wounds in our lives are deep and painful, and it takes time for them to heal. This is where prayer and community can meet because healing those relationships and the ability to forgive are part and parcel of reestablishing a community. If your relationships are fine, then you might consider helping foster community in the Parish by volunteering at the Sunday coffee hours at both churches.

For preaching, maybe there’s a situation at work or in your family where you struggle to say what’s right. Courage can help break through the challenge and offer a word about the Word Incarnate. In a different vein, you could also do extra work to support the poor by participating in the food drive that the Social Concerns Committee will host during Lent.

Finally, drawing together a number of these pillars all at once, our Parish Women’s Retreat (March 15) and Parish Men’s Retreat (March 22) are great ways to grow in study, prayer, and community. Reflecting on the wisdom of the Church and her saints can lead to a great growth in holiness.

Through all these opportunities to grow closer to the Lord this Lent, may we all put off the old man and put on the new man, who is Jesus Christ (cf. Ephesians 4:24).

In Christ,
Fr. Peter Martyr Yungwirth, O.P.

MUSIC NOTES

Josquin des Prez, the most esteemed European composer between Dufay and Palestrina and the head of the Franco-Flemish school of composition, is considered the first master of High Renaissance polyphony. His fame was widespread, even during his lifetime, as recorded by contemporary theorists. At least 375 works are attributed to him, but because of his fame, many anonymous compositions were published under his name by copyist to improve marketability. Born in the lands controlled by the Dukes of Burgundy, Josquin grew up as a choirboy and possibly studied under Ockeghem. In the 1490s, Josquin was a member of the papal choir in Rome, and from there worked in Milan, France, and, briefly in Duke Ercole I’s court in Ferrara. He spent the last twenty years of his life in his native region of Condé-sur-l’Escaut.

One of the best-known popular devotions in Catholic churches for decades has been the Exposition of the Blessed Sacrament, observed over the course of three days, which we call the Forty Hours' Devotion.

We resumed this tradition last year and it bore many fruits in the lives of our parishioners. Solemn Exposition will begin following the 12:10 PM Mass on Friday, March 7.

Please note that there is Daylight Savings Time this weekend. To enter the church between 7 PM and 7 AM, please use the door by the Rosary Altar. We will have security overnight in the church from 11 PM - 7 AM each night.

MUSIC FOR THE CONCLUSION OF THE FORTY HOURS DEVOTION

The Parish's Forty Hours' Devotion will conclude on Sunday, March 9 at 4 PM with 30 minutes of choral music followed by Solemn Benediction. Among other works, the Schola will sing Gerald Finzi's Lo, the full, final sacrifice, Op. 26. This 15-minute masterwork of the Anglican tradition sets two poems by Richard Crashaw (c. 1612-1649) which are themselves translations of Latin Eucharistic hymns by St. Thomas Aquinas, O.P. The imagery of manna, bread, and redemption run throughout the text.
