Hope during Electiontide

HOPE AT A TIME LIKE THIS

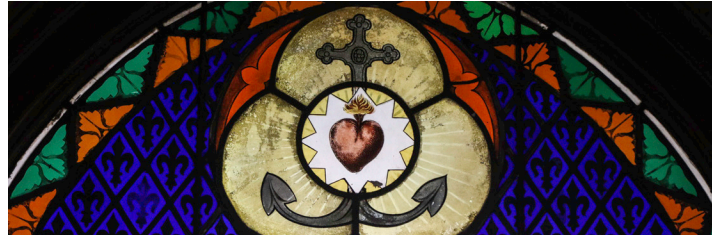

At the time of writing this, the General Election hasn't happened yet. While you won't be reading this with the same limited knowledge of history as I have at this time, I'm not paralyzed by what's about to happen. This isn't from some sort of deep despair over American politics, nor because I have some premonition about who our president-elect will be. It's because "our help is in the name of the Lord" (Psalm 124:8). The Lord provides for His people. Even if His providence plays itself out in ways that sometimes seem odd, "the Lord will not forsake his people, nor abandon his inheritance" (Psalm 94:14). No matter what will happen during the course of these next four years, the Lord will still remain faithful (cf. 2 Timothy 2:13).

All that being said, I'm not perfect at living out what I'm saying. I do have room to grow. Luckily, this is where the virtue of hope comes in. St. Paul says, "Endurance produces character, and character produces hope, and hope does not disappoint us, because God's love has been poured into our hearts through the Holy Spirit which has been given to us" (Romans 5:4-5). God is the giver of all good gifts (cf. James 1:17). What more would He want for us than that we could attain eternal life with Him? In light of this, He pours out faith, hope, and charity upon us so that our minds and hearts can be elevated to Him and rooted in Him.

In this triumvirate of virtues, hope is the "sure and steadfast anchor of the soul" (Hebrews 6:19). Like an anchor, hope unites us firmly to the rock who is Christ (cf. 1 Corinthians 10:4) so that we won't be blown around by the winds of despair and presumption. No matter what happens in these next four years, and no matter if our current response to the election is one of joy or despair, hope helps us to stay united to Christ so that we can rest in Him and in His providential plan.

IN WHOM DO WE HOPE

The reality is that some people will be exuberant, others will be dismayed, and others might think that the system is so broken that it doesn't matter. What do all those reactions signify, though? To a lesser or greater extent, they reveal that we might be putting too much stock in earthly powers to solve all our problems. Yet, earthly leaders come and go. While they can help in many ways, they can't save our souls. I think it's worth quoting a large part of Psalm 146 in this light: "Put no trust in princes, in mortal men in whom there is no help. Take their breath, they return to clay and their plans that day come to nothing. He is happy who is helped by Jacob's God, whose hope is in the Lord his God, who alone made heaven and earth, the seas and all they contain. It is he who keeps faith forever, who is just to those who are oppressed. It is he who gives bread to the hungry, the Lord, who sets prisoners free, the Lord who gives sight to the blind, who raises up those who are bowed down, the Lord, who protects the stranger and upholds the widow and orphan. It is the Lord who loves the just but thwarts the path of the wicked. The Lord will reign forever, Zion's God, from age to age" (Psalm 146:3-10).

God is the one who provides. Yes, He does desire that we be His instruments, cooperating with His providential plan. Yet, it is always in cooperation with Him. When we try to do it ourselves, that's when we fail. No matter who will be the president, there's only so much that that person can do to aid a country. Thus, we shouldn't treat the government like a savior. Instead, we should lift up our eyes and look to the Lord who made heaven and earth (cf. Psalm 121:1-2). He is the only Savior, and His goal is our eternal salvation. As St. Paul says, "I pray that the eyes of your heart may be enlightened in order that you may know the hope to which he has called you, the riches of his glorious inheritance in his holy people" (Ephesians 1:18).

As we enter another phase of American history, "may the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace in believing, so that by the power of the Holy Spirit you may abound in hope" (Romans 15:13).

In Christ the Servant,
Fr. Peter Martyr Yungwirth, O.P.

Mystagogy: Biblical Conversations with God: As a Person Speaks to a Friend

This fall's Mystagogy series will consider some of the numerous dialogues God had with His people in the Scriptures. From Adam and Eve to Moses and the Prophets, to the Gospels, where practically every interaction is a conversation with God, the Word made flesh. Guided by Fr. Francis, these interactions will lead us to ponder the meaning of prayer, a right understanding of God and ourselves, the history of salvation, and key themes of Biblical interpretation.
